

2015 activities

28 may:

Talk to teacher at local school to promote the plans for Nepali Children foundation.

27 may:

talks with locals in order to find a location to build the Nepali Children home.

People in the village of Madanpur as are the parent of Ram Prasad Sedain are all enthusiastic about the plans for Nepali Children Everybody wants to help in their own way:

- The parents of Ram make available a piece of land to build the Nepali Children home.
- School teacher will help in selecting the children who will take part.

We get a tip: If you really want to be meaningful for the village, you have to bind the right kind of local people at the right time to your foundation.

And above all: Select the right children.

11 may:

Talks with a university professor to present him our plans with Nepal Children.

This professor is very enthusiastic about possibilities and our chance on succeeding. He points out that 60% of student, belonging to the poorest Nepali, cannot continue their education because they are living below the minimum level of income to survive. Those students are forced to give up on their studies to help their families raise an income just to survive. There is simply no money to attend school!

- Making a choice where the children will attend school: Private (€ 20,00 monthly) or public (free of charge). The quality of the schools differs greatly, although there are some positive developments.
